INITIATIVE INTRODUCTION – VISION AND MISSION

We live at a unique time where beauty, health and wellness are rapidly converging in meaningful ways. The understanding that beauty is more than just “skin deep” is seeping into the global consciousness – a deep realization we can only be our most beautiful selves when we are in our most healthy state – physically, emotionally, socially, intellectually, professionally and spiritually.

The beauty and anti-aging industries were valued at US $999 Billion in 2015 according to the Global Wellness Institute’s newly released Global Wellness Economy Monitor, January 2017. This represents an approximate 27% share of the Global Wellness Economy.

According to Dr. Mehmet Oz:

Beauty isn’t some vapid and superficial pursuit that exists solely to sell products, wag tongues, and produce drool. Beauty is actually precisely perceived, purposeful, and rooted more in hard science than in abstract and random opinion. From the time we started prancing around the world with our body-hair parkas and leafy lingerie, evolution has pushed us to be more beautiful. And that’s why beauty serves as the foundation for our feelings, our happiness, and our existence. In fact, beauty doesn’t reflect our vanity as much as it does our humanity. Beauty is health...

This kind of traditional beauty—the outer kind—really isn’t just about looking good. Outer beauty serves as a proxy of how healthy you are; it’s the message you send to others about your health.
Beauty was the best way to figure it out (and in a tenth of a second, mind you). Now, if you take the concept of beauty a few steps deeper, you realize that inner beauty—the idea of feeling good and being happy—also has tremendous health implications in every aspect of your life.

What is your belief about beauty? What we believe ultimately impacts what we decide. What we decide determines our outcomes in life.

Sometimes we live life hiding behind beauty, trying to cover something up, trying to be something different as opposed to examining our belief system and choosing confidence, and acceptance of who we are in order to live our best lives.

VISION
The vision of Beauty Meets Wellness Initiative is to (1) identify the intersection between beauty and wellness, (2) create a new narrative which defines well beauty, and (3) generate evidence-based information and resources which help reposition beauty as a positive and dynamic contributor to the health and well-being of consumers worldwide.

MISSION
To scientifically connect beauty with wellness by developing expert knowledge and resources to:

1. accelerate the beauty industry's ability to create new markets which anticipate and surpass the evolving needs of today's health conscious consumer, and
2. facilitate positive change in the state of his or her health and well-being.

SUMMARY OF THE NYC BEAUTY MEETS WELLNESS ROUNDTABLE & INTERACTIVE FORUM

SESSION OBJECTIVES

1. To solicit input from a broad range of industry stakeholders to understand the beliefs which underpin our understanding of beauty and wellness and how they intersect.

2. Identify the connections and best practices which already exist, and the work yet to be done, to demonstrate how beauty contributes to the following dimensions of wellness:
   a. Spiritual
   b. Intellectual / Mental
   c. Social
   d. Emotional
   e. Physical
   f. Financial and Occupational

3. Envision trends “beyond beauty” that will meaningfully contribute to the next generation of well-beauty products and services.

4. Suggest ways to significantly move the dial from the current global perception of beauty to one that is scientifically based and is clearly linked to wellness outcomes.

5. Identify the challenges, obstacles and opportunities in establishing a direct correlation between beauty and wellness.
Round 1 Question: Do you believe beauty and wellness are connected? If so, what does the intersection look like, today? Where is it headed, and what does the future hold? Consider all dimensions of wellness – spiritual, intellectual, emotional/mental, social, physical, professional/occupational.

Summary: Looking at the industry from the inside out, there were varying opinions as to whether or not beauty and wellness actually connect, especially, in the mind of consumers. When considering each of the wellness dimensions, some connections are more linear than others:

- Emotional wellness – looking good, feeling good, giving rise to feelings of positivity, happiness and healthy self-esteem.
• Physical wellness – movement, exercise and recreation assisting in oxygenating and detoxifying the skin coupled with sound nutrition and supplements/ingestibles that positively impact beauty from the inside out.

• Social wellness – closely related to emotional wellness, social wellness is about wanting to connect based on feeling emotionally well, a desire to be in relationship with others, both interpersonally (sexually and non-sexually) and as part of a group or team.

• Professional wellness – the translation of feeling beautiful into productivity and results at work and ultimately outside of the occupational setting, in life.

Seemingly less apparent in terms of connection or consideration are spiritual and intellectual wellness.

In several groups, there was a sense that we have lost our way in the beauty industry and misplaced the sense of wholeness – seeing beauty as a tool to enhance our already perfect selves versus clinging to an underlying belief that we need to fix, cover up or try to be someone or something we are not. Inexperienced and uneducated influencers cloud the beauty message, creating confusion. Industry and influencer messaging often creates a sense of urgency or quest for the newest and next best thing. On the extreme end of the continuum, these messages can unintentionally create a profound “pathology of perfection,” a never-ending aspirational hope not based on reality or grounded in a strong sense of self. These messages are often transferred to youth in primary developmental years perpetuating the negative cycle. The core question which still needs to be addressed is can you have beauty without wellness and conversely wellness without beauty? Our beliefs on this topic will determine our thoughts and ultimately our results.

Several groups noted that spas, medical practices and wellness practitioners and services providers are best equipped to help consumers make the connection between beauty and wellness in the best possible way.
Round 2 Question: Do you believe gender, generational, socio-economic, cultural or other influences impact the connection between beauty and wellness? If so, how?

Summary: The two attributes the groups felt that influenced the connection between beauty and wellness most were education and socio-economics. It was noted that education and good information was the key attribute, given that even if consumers had a high-income advantage they may still be uneducated and be making choices that negatively impact beauty, health and wellness.

It was apparent from the discussion that different generations may view the connection between beauty and wellness differently. The needs of baby boomers differ from the beauty and grooming needs of millennials. Both males and females in younger generations are starting to incorporate beauty and grooming products into daily health and hygiene routines.

The jury is out as to whether or not there are cultural differences in our perceptions of beauty and wellness, as there is considerable neuroscience research that would suggest that there are universal aesthetic triggers associated with what we collectively deem to be beautiful.
BEAUTY MEETS WELLNESS: A GLOBAL INITIATIVE

Round 3 Four Playground Questions

PG1: Hot Spots & Best Practices – Two Tables
Divide your flipchart paper into two columns. What are the hot spots and best practices in products, services and procedures that connect beauty and wellness today? What are the disconnects?

Summary PG 1
Connecting Themes:
• Juceries
• IV treatments
• Detox/cleanses
• Boutique fitness/tribal affiliations
• Saks Fifth Avenue Wellery
• Supplements and ingestible beauty
• Physician-directed and pharma-grade cosmetics
• Luxury redefined from ostentatious to inconspicuous
• Ingenious pathways to wellness

Disconnecting Themes:

PG2: The New Vocabulary of Beauty + Consumer Perception
How do consumers view the connection between beauty and wellness? How important is it that they do and why?

Summary PG 2
Themes:
• While there may be similarities, today the connection is personal and our beliefs dictate how we view and consume beauty.
  • In many instances, influencers are creating confusion among consumers.
  • Many consumers view beauty as superficial and do not see the direct correlation to wellness.
  • Information overload is making it difficult for consumers to know

PG3: Connection Between Beauty & Mental Well-Being and “The Pathology of Perfection”
Do you believe there is a dark side to beauty? What are the messages being sent, today? What changes are required to positively position beauty as a key contributor to consumer well-being?

Summary PG 3
Themes:
• This topic was of most interest given the number of participants who selected this question of the four options.
  • In some ways, the beauty industry experiences the same difficulties medicine experiences promoting health, the incentives are misaligned
  • Beauty is an outcome of a holistic view of wellness and set of well-defined health practices

PG4: Epigenetics & the Skin’s Microbiome – Two Tables
What scientific and medical advances are accelerating the relationship between beauty and wellness? What is the next frontier, the trends “beyond beauty?”

Summary PG 4
Themes:
• Functional magnetic resonance imaging or functional MRI (fMRI) measures brain activity by detecting changes associated with blood flow and neuronal activation.
  • Need to collect multiple data points to develop a comprehensive health plan – medicine, diet, lifestyle, physical activity, products which contribute to health and hygiene. Collaboration between industry
Summary PG 1
Connecting Themes:
- Desire to achieve immediate results/quick fix versus path to wellness
- Uneducated and inexperienced influencer community
- "Pathology of Perfection"

Summary PG 2
Themes:

- Consumers experiencing beauty disrupted whether because of disease, i.e. cancer or even aging have the clearest picture of the connection between beauty and wellness
- Indie beauty is shaking the industry – quick, nimble, connected to today’s consumer, who is interested in authentic, sustainable and local with a story. Indy brands offer the greatest hope of leveraging social media in changing the dialogue and future direction of the intersection of beauty and wellness.

Summary PG 3
Themes:
- Starting early by educating children is a key interventional strategy in improving public health outcomes both in terms of mental wellness and disease prevention
- Brands and providers need to work closely to redefine beauty and wellness messaging
- Need to move from quick fix mentality to lifestyle solutions

Summary PG 4
Themes:
- Sustainability, green science and natural solutions becoming more readily available providing real results
- Neuroscience, epigenetics and the skins microbiome are the new frontiers for scientifically substantiating health outcomes and providing trusted consumer information.
Round 4 Question: What steps need to be taken to better align the beauty industry with wellness? What tangible outputs of the Initiative might benefit you or your industry segment most?

Summary: Thanks to the brilliant and meaningful conversation at the New York Roundtable the Beauty Meets Wellness Team is refining the vision, mission and deliverables. We will continue to tweak the work of the initiative as additional conversations happen in London and Hong Kong this year. We have elevated the four playgrounds thanks to our New York participants.

Diagram 1: The Four BMW Playgrounds
1. Overall – Solicit additional committee membership (monthly meetings) and establish a Steering Committee (quarterly meetings) to review progress and help guide the Beauty Meets Wellness Initiative.
